La Belle et les Bêtes - Gérémy Crédeville part en live;Gérémy Crédeville
Le Roi et l'Oiseau - La chronique de Christine Gonzalez;Christine Gonzalez

To extract the comedian names, I analyzed each title as follows:

1. Ne me parlez plus d IA - la chronique de Thomas VDB: This title suggests a news or commentary show. Thomas VDB is mentioned, and given the context of "la chronique" (a type of regular commentary or editorial segment), it implies Thomas VDB is a personality on the show, likely a comedian or humorist given the tone the title suggests.

2. Le Barbecue Disney - La chanson de Frédéric Fromet: The title implies a light-hearted or comedic segment, perhaps a song or sketch. Frédéric Fromet is mentioned, and the context suggests a performance, indicating Frédéric Fromet is likely a comedian, singer, or actor involved in comedy.

3. Pickles de navet express - Les recettes de François-Régis Gaudry: This title suggests a cooking or recipe segment. François-Régis Gaudry is mentioned as providing recipes, which doesn't directly imply comedy. Without further context, it seems this segment is more about cooking than comedy, so François-Régis Gaudry is not extracted as a comedian name.

4. Ras-Le-Bol des armes que Stallone fasse des pichenettes - Tanguy Pastureau maltraite l'info: The use of "Ras-Le-Bol" and "maltraite l'info" suggests a comedic or satirical news segment. Tanguy Pastureau is mentioned, indicating involvement in a comedic or humorous take on news.

5. La Belle et les Bêtes - Gérémy Crédeville part en live: The title references a known story ("La Belle et la Bête") in a way that suggests a comedic twist or parody. Gérémy Crédeville is going live, which implies a performance, possibly comedic given the title's playful nature.

6. Le Roi et l'Oiseau - La chronique de Christine Gonzalez: Similar to the first title, this suggests a commentary or editorial segment with a humorous or satirical take, given the use of "Le Roi et l'Oiseau," which could be metaphorical or comedic. Christine Gonzalez is the personality behind this segment, implying involvement in comedy or humor.

From this analysis, the comedian names that can be extracted from the titles are Thomas VDB, Frédéric Fromet, Tanguy Pastureau, Gérémy Crédeville, and Christine Gonzalez.
